From the Governor

The landscapes of Montana cover a wide spectrum of unique and beautiful agricultural scenes, from which an array of agricultural commodities are grown and processed. Through the Montana Food and Beverage Directory, you have the opportunity to directly contact those individuals and businesses that produce and sell the high quality agricultural products of Montana.

The producers and processors listed in this publication may participate successfully on a local or a global level. Regardless of the size of the enterprise, these companies have the capabilities to supply the best products Montana has to offer. It is my hope that the 2001-2002 Montana Food and Beverage Directory will assist in connecting consumers with the world-class producers and processors across Big Sky Country.

JUDY MARTZ
Governor

From the Director

Agriculture remains the cornerstone to the Montana economy. Changing global markets provide an opportunity to increase emphasis on adding value to agri-products.

The Montana Department of Agriculture recognizes the importance of food processing toward enhancing Montana's competitive edge in the value-added agricultural industry of today. The purpose of the Food and Beverage Directory is to facilitate communication between value-added suppliers and those wishing to purchase food and beverage products. The Food and Beverage Directory also provides buyers with a reference to food products produced within Montana.

In addition to providing a list of value-added producers in Montana, the Food and Beverage Directory allows you to identify companies that are currently exporting, or are interested in entering export markets. This tool can be utilized to find companies that match your interests and markets.

Thank you for your interest in Montana agriculture. We hope that the Food and Beverage Directory will assist you in contacting suppliers of quality Montana products.
